Pal Toys : Bright and Beyond: Thinking before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Bright and Beyond: Thinking:

3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Good selection of activities for lots of ages.By Kathryn E. MitchellThe box says ages 7 up, but my 5, 8, and 14 year olds all have fun with these activities. My husband and I like them too. I like that there is a mix of types of activities. Brain teasers, puzzles, codes, games, experiments. The variety is really good, and most of the activities you can play again and again. We leave the deck on the breakfast table and do the activities during breakfast and when we're just hanging out. We like the Bright and Beyond math deck too for my two younger ones. These decks are very good values.

Illustrated learning ideas on cards mean short, simple instructions, easy sorting, and quick visual cues to understanding the activity. In the Thinking deck (for children 7 up), you will encounter Word Play and Number Games, Codes and Ciphers, Abstract and Spatial Thinking, Patterns and Distinctions, Critical Thinking and Strategy! Little planning is required as most activities set up in moments with materials found right around the home. We have had a lot of fun compiling these varied thinking activities, brain games, and puzzlers. Although hints and answers are provided where necessary, in most cases, success can be achieved through patient effort. Genius has been defined as "an infinite capacity for taking pains." If this is true, then a thorough and meticulous individual of average intelligence is much more likely to achieve success than a careless, inattentive "genius." At the bottom of the back side of most cards is an "extra credit" question that can be fun to research (for example, "What is the Enigma Cipher Machine?" and "What do a bear's paw and a double wedding ring have in common?") "Bright and Beyond" decks have been recognized with numerous awards including "Dr. Toys 100 Best Childrens Products," and being voted #1 by Homeschool.com. With added endorsements from American Montessori Consulting, preschool directors, child development educators, and countless parents, customers can have the confidence that "Bright and Beyond" will meet their own high standards. For less than 19-cents per idea, parents are provided with quality, interactive, back-to-basics play and learning activities. One small package provides a years worth of fun learning and play-time ideas. The primary goals of childhood are to grow, learn, and play. Learning through play is beautifully achieved with the activities in the "Bright and Beyond" decks.

"Bright and Beyond" [is] perfect for parents who want a broad-based head start for their child." -- Marti Monroe, PhD, Child Development Educator
About the Author
Pal Toys products are created from the concept that it doesnt take high tech toys or elaborate set-ups for creative, educational play. Pal stands for "play and learn," the way we think learning should happen.
