Perez PolancoIt is a real nice collection of images that introduces you to the inventive universe of nighttime ensembles. Its really cool but i wish it were longer and the pictures bigger, but still, really great.

...a low-ceilinged, sweaty, black box of a room is filled with people of every color, sexual-orientation, height, weight, dress-sense (or non-sense) imaginable. They all have just one thing in common: they're all a little bit... different. The Misshapes have found their box. About the AuthorThe MisShapes are Greg Krelenstein (25), Leigh Lezark (21), and Geordon Nicol (21), the promoters and DJs behind an eponymous Saturday night party as well as fashion and musicworld staples in their own right. The MisShapes phenomenon began in February 2004 when the club night, which many now consider the best in hipster Manhattan, opened its doors for the first time. Its a teenage rocknroll dance party for kids in their twenties, and its been going strong ever since, capturing a raucous, raw spirit that is the ruling aesthetic for todays creative types. The trio has been heralded in publications ranging from People to Paper, Nylon to The New York Times. Blender had them on their Hot 100 list and Leigh Lezark was one of New York magazines "Most Influential New Yorkers" in 2006 as well as one of Spin magazines "Top 25 Under 25."
