"After forty years playing Bridge competitively, I was surprised at how much value this book had." -- Ron Stumpo, Professional Bridge Player
About the Author
Jerry Olsen started playing Bridge with friends in the 1960s. Information from the American Contract Bridge League (ACBL) helped him considerably as he participated in Duplicate Bridge tournaments throughout the country and abroad, becoming a certified ACBL Bridge teacher and director. In 1993, he started teaching aboard various cruise ships. While his students were learning these bidding techniques, there were constantly asking him to write something so they could study at home. Out of necessity, this book was written. Senior citizens have missed much joy of the game because they have been lacking bidding skills. They have learned how to bid in the 1950s, 1960s, and 1970s; so Jerry has been working with them to modernize their skills and improve their game, their scores, and their enjoyment. And that they have, thanks to Jerry and the techniques that he passes on. Finally, he has placed that information in this book.
