In this game, you are a new employee at Ninja Burger, a fast food chain dedicated to delivering to the most undeliverable locations. You start by getting dealt 3 Ninja Cards (the black cards), You then read the 3 cards and decide who you will be and reveal your identity.

You will have a number rating for each of the Ninja Burger skills: Combat, Stealth, Disguise, Climbing, Customer Service. You may also have other categories such as Driving, Computers, Animals, and Math. Then you also have an Other Stuff category that covers anything not covered by the others. Depending on your mission/errand, you must make dice rolls in one or more of these categories. The higher your skill the better your chance of winning that roll. I have 2 big complaints of this game. The first is one of the rules is stupid. You start with 6 Honor Tokens, but the game ends when you have 5 more honor tokens than anyone else, or the total honor tokens in play is equal to 10x the number of players in the game. You can get up to 2 honor points a mission, and if things go right, the game can end in 2 turns. This is easily fixed, we did 12 or 15x the number of players for honor tokens, or started with 5 and stated a 5 round minimum. Small thing and easy to fix. The other big problem is this is a fairly large box, with a specialty divided and stuff barely fits. All the game consists of are 3 decks of slightly oversized cards, 3 dice, some cardboard money in various denominations, and honor tokens, a smaller box would have been fine. This game was great, we have played it 3-4 times, and while it does not have the replayability of Munchkin, it will be making its way into my regular rotation. It is a light game with great humor, that is especially great for new gamers.

Good replayability within reason. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Fun Game, I feel as though the rules were ... By Joel V. Fun Game, I feel as though the rules were a little confusing at first. It took several of us discussing it, for a longer than desired time period. After the game got under way, and we got used to the cards, it was fun, I enjoy playing it. Not as much as Munchkin, but it is a nice change up.
